In the heart of Berry, the house was built in 1760 and is thought to have been once a small priory within closed walls. It is situated behind Foëcy's church. You will find Foëcy between Bourges and Vierzon .

Au Petit Prieuré

The gates of the private, walled courtyard open to face the delightful house, which features a bell tower over the front door and, inside 2 large reception rooms that lead out to the terrace and private garden. The ground floor also has 1 guestroom. A winding staircase takes you upstairs, where there are two further guestrooms.

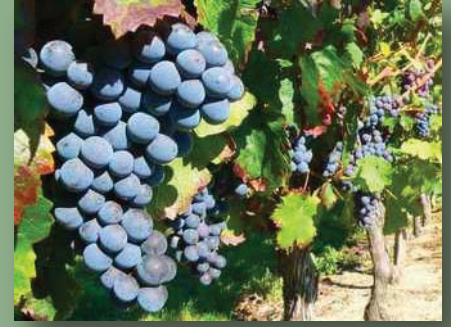

The small building to the left of the main house is attached to what is thought to have been the chapel. It is a large, unused and unrestored room which could be adapted to your purpose.

Foëcy is located between Bourges and Vierzon, about 2 hours South of Paris and about 2.5 hours from Poitiers and Tours Airports. FOECY is right in the heart of France. It is surrounded by the Cher wine area. There are vineyards all about and many castles, markets and porcelain factories to visit in the locality. Nearby destinations, rich with history and immense charm include Aubiigny, Azay le Rideau, Mehun sur Yèvre, Reully. Quincy and Sancerre.

Foëcy Church is stunning in all seasons.

Another little-known gem, near to us is Mehun sur Yèvre. If you are looking for an unspoiled location, the area all around Au Petit Prieuré is a treasure trove of new and enchanting discovery.

Reully Chateau is a stunner from all angles....but for local colour, just look at this house in Aubigny

Food and drink? How about the Bourges market or the lovely Sancerre vineyards?

Canals and rivers abound in this area.
